

Caren Schelleman is an assistant professor at the Department of Accounting and Information Management at Maastricht University School of Business and Economics, where she also completed both her MA (Economics and Business Administration, 1997) and PhD (Auditing, 2003). She received part of her research training at the Fisher School of Accounting at the University of Florida in Gainesville, Florida. During the period June 2003-January 2004 Caren was a visiting professor at the University of Auckland, New Zealand. Caren coordinates and teaches courses on internal control and auditing at both undergraduate and graduate levels.

She has presented papers at Annual Congresses of the European Accounting Association, Midyear Meetings of the Audit Section of the American Accounting Association, the International Symposium on Audit Research, conferences of the European Auditing Research Network, and at several workshops and seminars in Europe and the US. Her work has been published in The Accounting Review, Auditing, the European Accounting Review, Accounting and Business Research, Accounting & Finance, and the International Journal of Auditing. Her research interests include auditing, assurance services, internal control, and corporate governance, both from an economic and a behavioral point of view.