

Juan Manuel García Lara is full professor of accounting at Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. He was the head of the Department of Business Administration at Carlos III (that includes the areas of Accounting, Finance, Management and Marketing) between 2017 and 2023. Before joining Carlos III in 2005 he was a lecturer (assistant professor) in the Department of Accounting and Finance at Lancaster University, and a Marie Curie researcher at the University of Manchester.

His research interests cover several research streams in financial accounting, including conservatism, earnings management, and the links of financial accounting with corporate governance, the costs of financing and corporate investments. His research has been published in accounting academic journals such as Journal of Accounting and Economics, Review of Accounting Studies, Journal of Business Finance and Accounting, Abacus, Accounting and Business Research, Journal of Accounting and Public Policy and European Accounting Review, and in finance journals, like Journal of Banking and Finance or Journal of Corporate Finance. He is joint editor, since 2016, of Accounting and Business Research, and he also serves in the editorial board of the European Accounting Review and of the Journal of Business Finance & Accounting. His former PhD students are currently faculty members at leading institutions worldwide. He is currently, and since 2021, member of the Management Committee of the European Accounting Association.
