Application –PhD students and faculty members.

PhD students and faculty members interested in participating in the job market as candidates are asked to submit the following materials before October 5th, 2026:

- their job market paper,
- resume,
- brief research statement,

at the following email address: eea-jobmarket@ie.edu. Participation in the Talent Workshop is free for accepted candidates, and this will cover their participation in the scientific program, availability to hold interviews with recruiters, coffee breaks and lunches. Upon acceptance to the Talent Workshop, candidates will be asked to complete the registration form that will be available on the website.

Please, kindly note that accepted candidates to participate in the EAA Talent Workshop must be members of the European Accounting Association in 2026 or 2027. Accepted candidates will get access to vacancies posted by recruiting institutions.

Registration –Recruiting institutions.

Recruiting institutions are asked to complete the registration form that is available on <https://secure.ie.edu/EAAJobMarket/>. The institutional fee for recruiters is 450 euros; it covers for the participation of one member of the recruiting institution as well as the use of a meeting place to interview candidates. The registration fee for further members of the same institution, who share the same meeting place, is 350 euros. Please note that to benefit from this special fee, all members must register at the same time. This means that if an institution registers several members but does so at different times, the special fee cannot apply. Recruiting institutions' deadline: October 20, 2026. Registration fee after the deadline is 500 euros, subject to availability.

Recruiting institutions may post their vacancies on the EAA Talent Workshop's website.
